Road Safety & Simulation

23-26 June 2026, Naples, Italy

Call for Sponsorship

The University of Naples Federico II will host the 10th Road Safety and Simulation (RSS 2026) International Conference. This is an important global event about road safety. The city of Naples was chosen by the Permanent Steering Committee for its academic and scientific excellence.

The conference is a great opportunity for researchers, experts, and professionals to meet and share their latest ideas and innovations on road safety and the use of simulation to study and prevent crashes. The event will take place from June 23 to 26, 2026 at the University of Naples Federico II (www.rss2026.org).

The theme of RSS 2026 is "Advancing Towards the Safe System Approach". The aim is to promote new analytical and practical methods to help achieve the Vision Zero goal of the United Nations: zero deaths and zero serious injuries on the roads. RSS 2026 will address a wide range of topics, such as the pillars of the Safe System Approach, new technologies and tools for road safety, data analysis and safety assessment, human factors and driving behaviour, safety and accessibility for vulnerable road users, safety effects of geometric design, and innovative countermeasures.

The RSS 2026 Organizing Committee warmly invites companies and institutions to support this prestigious international event as sponsors.

The conference will attract hundreds of researchers and professionals from all over the world. Supporting RSS 2026 is a valuable opportunity to increase your international visibility and to demonstrate your commitment to safer and more sustainable mobility. It is also a chance to be part of an active international community working together for a safer future.

We sincerely look forward to collaborating with you and making RSS 2026 a successful and memorable experience for all our sponsors.
